As the Editor

-SEES IT

Probably one of the greatest cares of an editor is the disbursement each Tuesday and Friday of good, meaty editorials for the students. Propaganda, propaganda and bicycle tires are always good copy, which brings us to the subject of to-

One thing is always kept in mind. Give them something to think about, something to sink their teeth into, i.e., something meaty. Which all goes to infer that we are back to our original premise and will proceed directly from there.

Quite a few students at the college are puzzled by the political situation. By that, they infer that they do not really know who runs what, why they do it, if not, why not, and further, who did it if they won't. If you are mixed up now that we have arrived at our Utopia and those who were informed before and puzzled now can proceed with the rest of the class, while we cut up the political pie for the student body.

As in any student body or democratic government, there are always two sides. One is the majority, in power; the other is the minority, who wants to get in power. The majority, or the Old Guard, naturally wants to stay in power. That's where the trouble always starts.

For years this situation has existed, with the old guard slowly losing power. They have not pointed with pride to their record and said, "we have done this, re-elect us." Instead a propaganda system has been built up through the last two years, which has used organizations as scapegoats. Students have blinded themselves to obvious facts and jumped at cleverly hinted conclusions.

 Editorials and features in the Golden Gater reflect the opinion of the writer. They make no claim to represent student or administrative opinion. All unsigned editorials are by the Editor

At the last few general student body elections there has been a conspicuous lack of "Vote for him, he's a good man, he's got ideas, initiative. forethought, experience, capabilities, qualities of leadership, a fine public speaker, etc." Instead there has been severe criticism of each candidate, with the one with the most few obvious propaganda hindrances emerging victorious. Cleverly, the strongest candidate has been edged out in the first round, while the dark horse came through on schedule

Most of us have been around for those last few years. William J. J. Smith, Clifford Worth, Bob Sweeney and incumbent Morley Carrothers were all popularly considered dark horses.

There are no advantages that organizations can gain through so-called "control" of the school that they cannot get if they are live functioning bodies. Organizations now on the campus had better reputations and received more advantages by holding their members out of polities than they are through the present policy of putting it strictly up to the individual. One can see, in calm perspective, that it is strictly an individual proposition. We have never seen an organization out en masse campaigning for a member. Rather, it has been policy to stay out of the picture entirely.

A scapegoat always takes the pressure off of the ruling powers. That is obvious in a larger scale in Europe. This is supposed to be a democracy here at the college. Democracy essentially is education.

We hope that we have educated you.

Certainly past administrations never got in any trouble. Safety zones never bred active

Fantasies of Fashion

By Alice Sweeney

Rain togs are no longer the dull, drab, hated things of a few seasons ago. They are now so cleverly detailed and come in such glorious colors that they have achieved an importance of their own in our wardrobes, and add a bright touch to the usual gloom of rainy day weather.

Many of the smartest rain coats are reversible -wool on one side and water processed gabardine on the other, while some are water-proof corduroy in such luscious shades as scarlet, beige there's nothing better to do. (And and cadet blue; and others are stark white in water processed pique, gabardine and balloon cloth. These were first introduced by the Safety league to reduce accidents but have since been taken up by many of the style-conscious women of the country.

The newest raincoats, however, are made of either oiled silk or pliofiln and feature full skirts, trim waists and bewitching hoods.

Umbrellas are also more colorful and now come in gay plaids, flowered patterns and in campus, by the shores of Lake Mertransparent materials for safety's sake. The newest innovation in umbrellas is a small collapsible one which fits into an oiled silk bag physically able Stater. As yet this which looks like a knitting bag and has large stadium has not been named. We wooden handles.

To keep one's feet smart as well as dry is no lenger a problem since the introduction of lightweight overshoes. Some are small, transparent rubbers which come in many bright shades and some are styled like shoes, with unusual trimming and details, while others are galoshes lavishly trimmed with fur and interesting fabrics Freshies Plan Baby and colors. About the most currently popular, Party With Kids however, are the high rubber boots which are being shown in bright red, shiny black, and snowy

These have low heels, which accounts for their popularity with the co-eds and are knee-high, word coming from front line head copied from those we wore when children.

Are You Prejudiced?

The first in the series of secret prejudices as revealed by the students of Dr. Fisk's philosophy 5Λ after studying logic dealt with personal dislikes of others' actions, dress, and behavior.

The coming presidential election brings forth party prejudices as those against the Republican where the student objects to the candidates presented but also admits he knows little about the men. Against Socialists one student says, "I have a very great prejudice against anyone who talks of socialistic ideas, because for as long as I can remember I have heard the best points of capitalism and now I would find it very difficult

One student's attitude against labor unions resulted from unpleasantness with them which concerned his family directly.

Another objects to organized labor as it is conducted today, because he says it is demoralizing American business. The student who has a prejudice against Harry Bridges says he has no definite reason upon which to base it except hearsay. Yet when his name is mentioned he reacts against it.

Race and religion are two significant topics upon which many students have admitted prejudices. The reasons given for these often run in the same vein as of early training or impres-

"The most vivid and most shocking event I ever experienced occurred when I was fairly young and formed a prejudice which has influenced my thinking and action from that day forth. Race and religious prejudice was a subject about which I then had no knowledge.

My dearest friend in my last year of grammar school was a Jewish girl. I thought as highly of this girl and her family as I did of my other friends.

I was at their home one afternoon when her brother, considerably older than she, shuffled irritably into the room. Considerably upset about something, he expressed his sentiments impetuously, 'Those d- Christians-' going no further when he realized that a Christian had just heard his rash statement. Since then I have never seen or heard from my friend and my attitude toward this race, unjust as it may be, is one extremely prejudiced."

Early religious training made one student associate every Jew with Judas Iscariot. Opposed to this is a prejudice against Catholics because one student as a child was told that the Catholics did awful things to people who weren't true to the church.

Similarly attitudes against the Negro and Mongolian races developed fear from hoary tales implanted by parents in children as to their sly, crafty ways.

STATE-ments

A Moment for Thought . . .

We admit that this colvumn is written for the fun we get out of writing it and for what fun you can get out of reading it. We kick it around at times, pull a few corny cracks here and there, and just try to make it something to glance at in a spare second or two when there usually is something better to do!) But for a few paragraphs here we'd like to become serious and put forth a suggestion on something ery pertinent today.

Last Saturday night Jack Tandy gave his life for a game which he loved and for a school which he chose to call "Alma Mater." A year from now there will have risen, if present plans go through, on the now-vacant site of State's new ced, a new and magnificent stadium a stadium dedicated to the building of a finer, stronger, more think the only logical, the only rightful name for this future field

"TANDY MEMORIAL STADIUM" President Roberts has said that he does not desire the new field named after him. Who, then, de-should be:

serves it more than Jack Tandy . . one who exemplified all that this new stadium will be dedicated to . a fine, strong, physically able Stater. Jack Tandy's name will never be forgotten as long as S. F. State continues to exist. And naming this stadium after Jack would perpetuate his name for all posterity as one who gave a supreme sacrifice for his school. So may it be, fight on, you Gaters in "TANDY MEMORIAL STADIUM!!"

The Five W's: What was the idea of all the silk stockings at school last Friday, gals? Since when do Cal-Poly boys rate what we never get to see? . . . Why did the band spell "O Hell' instead of "Hello" as originally intended at the game? . . . Who caused all those Gater women to trek up to Davis for the Aggie homecoming tomor-find so much to talk about? . . . and When does this colyumn end? RIGHT NOW!

Brother, if you think you've seen anything up here at our dear ole alma mammy as yet, you're sadly mistaken . . . at least that's the quarters of the frosh classes now adays. Under the prexyship of Ray middle of November. The idea is to hold a nite dance . . . wear baby clothes . . . and give it the big time with jump rope, jacks, hop-scotch, spin the bottle, post office and all such "prep-stuff."

Prizes for the best participants will be given out . . . altho they haven't figured out how to award the "post-office" prize as yet! Right now the idea's in its embryo stage or should we say "baby stage" . but the committees are at work (well, at least they're supposed to be) so pretty soon we should be getting ready to let our hair down to really have a riot of roughhouse, a barrel of baby-stuff, and a fill of fun at the Freshmen Baby Party! . . .

Comment on Rainy Days and Raincoats

We have unofficially named this week "National Sympathy Week," in honor of the many owners of those newfangled reversible overcoats. Rather than confuse the issue, let us explain.

There are two groups of owners First there is the group that obtained their coat perhaps via sales, discounts, or Uncle Ben's hock shoppe. The second and more important group is the one that comprises all those "sharpies" who foresaw the fine points of these double-purpose coats.

Our interest and whole-hearted sympathy is with the latter group, for after having waited for weeks months on end, the long-awaited moment arrived. Yes, a couple nimbuses and stratoes (clouds to you) got out of hand, and rain fell. Here was the chance to reverse those coats, and really knock the boys over!

Just at their triumphant mo ment, the rain stopped.

These disgruntled souls have passed out of view, but perhaps their wrath has been exhibited by such unobtrusive actions as: several threats to the weatherman, appraisals by Uncle Ben, and trade-ins on a couple of tickets to the Stanford-Washington game.

Letter to the Editor Dear Editor

If those students who are wistfully remembering the days when the Chaser was presented to the campus will look at their last copies, they will note that it was dubbed, 'Final Chaser.'' This title turned out to be prophetic because powers that be have forbidden that publication to be distributed on the campus. This rule has been in effect since last spring. With these considerations how can Fog be a revamping of the Chaser?

In other words, either we have a magazine on this campus of the nature of Fog or no magazine at all. Those of us who organized Fog have regarded it as a place of experimentation for students who might at some future time become professional magazine writers. Any constructive criticism to further this aim will be gladly received by the Sincerely.

JO ASHLOCK, Editor of Fog.

More Holes Picked In Wilkie Talk

On Monday night Mr. Roosevelt pointed out the fact that one de fense measure after another was voted down by Republicans in Congress, but that Democratic votes put the bills through.

In a sort of rebuttal speech, Mr. Willkie, on Tuesday night, said that Mr. Roosevelt, in his ignorance, asked for inadequate sums of money. Our "hoozier Wall Street" candidate said that the third-term candidate, in current bills, asked not for billions but a few paltry millions for defense purpo

Are we to understand that the reason various defense measures were voted against by Republicans is that they didn't ask for enough? Seemingly, there is space available for Republican incongruity despite the fact that most of it appears to be occupied. Perhaps the next thing we will hear from the anti-dictator campaigners will be that the Congressional Record is undemocratic and inaccurate-who knows?

Reade, deGhetaldi End Grid Careers Tonight

Tonight the curtain will ring down on the gridiron careers of two State football "greats." Chad Reade and Guido deGhetaldi.

When the last gun has sounded signifying the end of the LaVerne game, Reade and deGhetaldi will lay aside their moleskins after three years of valiant service under the colors of the Golden Tide.

Reade, who came to State via Lowell and Stanford, was popularly dubbed the "one-man backfield" and carried the brunt of the local offense for three seasons.

Guido was called upon many times to step out of his role of guard and fill in at a center or tackle position, and, on each occa sion, responded nobly.
